HOW TO SCHEDULE A TUTOR

1. Students should fill out the study group tutoring request form completely and accurately. Without complete information, the tutoring office cannot place a tutor with a study group. This information includes an S number, Front Range student email address, a phone number, and the student's signature.
2. Once students have completed a Study Group Request Form, one member of the group brings it to the office for scheduling.
3. Scheduling will be followed by an email confirmation to the students' FRCC email addresses. All the students in the group have to confirm the time and day before the group can start.

INFORMATION FOR STUDENTS REQUESTING STUDY GROUP TUTORING

- Students who are enrolled in a credit class at the Boulder County Campus of FRCC can form a study group of 3-5 students for one hour of free weekly group tutoring. There is no grade requirement to join a study group.
- All tutoring takes place on the Boulder County campus. Students who wish to have additional study group session without a tutor have the option to meet off-campus, if they wish.
- Students are expected to attend every study group session. If the number of students who attend regularly drops below three, then the group will be disbanded.
- Tutors do not do homework for students. They are facilitators of student learning. Students should be prepared with goals and questions for each tutoring session.
- The 12th week of the fall or spring semester or the 8th week of the summer session is the last time students can form a study group with a tutor.
- Students must sign in at the computers by the main desk of the Student Success Center before every study group tutoring session.
