Visit our Larimer Campus Writing Center Web page at www.frontrange.edu/LCwritingcenter for copies of our drop-in schedule and informational flyer with guidelines for visits (also available in BP 102), an archive of Writers Elevated newsletters, consultant biographies, and other helpful materials and links to resources. You can also find the page by linking from the FRCC home page to “Academic Assistance” (under “Being a Student”) to “Larimer Campus-Learning Opportunity Center” (under “Academic Support Centers”) to “Writing Center.” (A D2L link is also available.)

Many instructors encourage but do not require their students to visit. If you are considering any requirements that involve the Writing Center, please become familiar with our schedule and the scope of our services and space before deciding. Contact the Larimer Campus Writing Center Director (info. near the top of this page) to find out more about recommendations for usage, to ask about options for outreach and in-class orientations, or to share questions and feedback. We sometimes offer surveys as well, and these are reported on in our newsletter.

To access FRCC’s college-wide online writing lab (OWL) feedback service, visit www.frontrange.edu/writingcenter (or link from our Web page listed above, from the “Academic Assistance” page, or from D2L), and you can contact FRCC OWL Coordinator Sonja Scullion if you have additional questions about this service. We encourage students to try both in-person and online feedback services for the unique benefits that each provides.
